

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE
November 10, 2008

Brooks & Dunn among the many celebrities have autographed specially made "pink" Chinks that will be auctioned on EBAY for the fight against breast cancer

The Kentucky Tennessee Ranch Horse Association joined the "Wrangler's Tough Enough To Wear Pink" campaign for 2008. Carrie Dowell designed a beautiful handcrafted pair of "chinks" with the famous pink ribbon insignia.

We asked the country music industry for their help and their support came rolling in. Stars such as: Brooks & Dunn, Billy Ray Cyrus, John Rich, Jewel, Jeffrey Steele, Eddie Montgomery, Troy Gentry, Sara Evans, Trace Adkins, Donnie Van Zant, Marty Stuart, and Martina McBride have autographed them. New signatures are being added everyday and will continue through November. We also have Chris Cox of RFD TV's autograph that started it all.

Las Vegas's National Finals Rodeo (NFR) will be the height of the promotional roller coaster where the autographed chinks will be featured at several of the events. They will also be on display at a booth during Cowboy Christmas. Then the fun will begin when they are put up for auction on EBAY beginning November 30th thru December 15th with all proceeds going to the Susan G. Komen Breast Cancer Foundation.

Kentucky Tennessee Ranch Horse Association (KTRHA) is an affiliate of the American Ranch Horse Association. KTRHA promotes the versatile ranch horse with shows and clinics in Kentucky and Tennessee. To learn more about Kentucky Tennessee Ranch Horse Association, please visit the web site at www.ktrha.com.

The American Ranch Horse Association was formed n 2004 to promote ranch horses, events, and western traditions. For more information about ARHA programs, events, and charters, visit www.americanranchhorse.net or contact the ARHA Office at (606) 271-2963 or email arhainfo@aim.com .

